

I am writing to express my dismay that the FEC and FCC feels it can "do nothing" about the Sinclair Broadcast Group's outrageous airing of their so-called Kerry "documentary". The fact that they are trying to wrap this in as "local news" is such a clear violation of election law AND the FCC's own rules shakes my faith in the idea that the FCC is not politically biased. The so called "consolidation" of media groups makes it clear that when large corporations take over local media, they will eventually determine what news we see and snuff out alternatives to their political views.

Sinclair uses the PUBLIC airwaves and is required to serve the public interest by FCC rules. I don't begrudge them making money, but I do find it unacceptable that they serve a particular political master. How can Sinclair's actions be acceptable to the FCC and FEC, since you are the regulatory agencies? If you don't regulate that sort of thing, what do you regulate? Oh, I forget, Janet Jackson's Breast offense is the sort of thing you exercise control over. I guess a bared female breast is FAR more dangerous to the public than an assault on democratic process.

If the FCC serves ANY purpose, it should immediately REVOKE Sinclair's license. They don't own the airwaves, the public does.
